

SuperScienceMe: REsearch is your RE-Generation

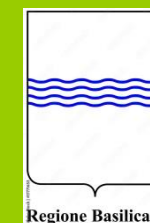

European Researchers' Night

SuperScienceMe is a dip into the knowledge in search of scientific and cultural wonders

The project fully embraces the European Green Deal, to reverse course and transform climate and environmental challenges into opportunities. It is aimed at all generations and, like a modern Noah, unites them around an ideal, calling them to build a symbolic ark, to convey the message that "Research can help regenerate the planet and save lives". Researchers from universities and institutions in two regions of southern Italy, Calabria and Basilicata, open the doors of their laboratories; they bring research to the unskilled public and talk to people of any age, to show them the extraordinary normality of their lives and encourage young people to pursue scientific careers while also helping the planet.
